Neil Smith: We are establishing a new office in Tokyo, and we are interested in purchasing a large amount of goods from your company. Of course, provided that you give us a good offer.

Adam Jackson: What amount approximately are we talking about?

Neil Smith: We would need around 500 tables and twice that of chairs, as well as some other office furniture. We will decide on the exact numbers no later than next Thursday.

Adam Jackson: I see. We could definitely offer a discount for such an amount of goods.

Neil Smith: So, how much of a discount would you be willing to offer to us? I know that this is on short notice, but I'd like to add that we are on the hunt for a long-time partner.

Adam Jackson: I would like you to consider our offer of 5% off for the upcoming purchase and maybe a little bit more after the contract for a longer-term relationship is signed. How does that sound to you?

Neil Smith: (1) I am afraid that might not be enough to close the deal. We are evaluating offers from other suppliers, too.
Adam Jackson: You drive a hard bargain! I guess competition is fierce these days. What about a fixed rate of 7% discount? That is my last word.
Neil Smith: (2) That sounds reasonable. I think we have a deal. Thank you very much. It is always a pleasure doing business with you, Mr. Jackson.
